

Wheezometer – Medical Device To Measure Wheezing Before and After Tests

Posted Oct 07 2009 10:01pm

This company makes a couple other interesting products too, like the Cough Counter. There will be nothing soon that occurs in or out of our bodies that will not be accounted for (grin). The Wheezometer can help determine the effectiveness of asthma medications and allow for change and modification. BD

From the website:

- Physicians: Pediatricians, GPs, internists, asthma/allergy specialists.
Nurses: Emergency, ICU/PICU/NICU, ward, asthma nurses, school nurses.
- Technicians and Paramedics: Respiratory therapists, EMS personnel, military medics, sports paramedics, occupational health officers.
- Patients and Caregivers: Under guidance of a healthcare professional.

KarmelSonix Ltd. (ASX: KSX) has obtained US Food and Drug Administration (FDA) marketing clearance for the company's WheezoMeter, a diagnostic tool that measures a patient's wheezing before and after tests with a bronchodilator, thereby demonstrating the effectiveness of asthma treatments.

The company obtained EU CE Mark certification of the device in July, as well as from Australia's Therapeutic Goods Administration (TGA).

FDA approves KarmelSonix's Wheezometer
